Arcata raising recycling, refuse rates

Kevin L. Hoover
MAD RIVER UNION

ARCATA — Arcata property owners and Recology customers are getting a rate increase for garbage and recycling services.

Arcata's contract with Recology ended in September, and according to staff report, the Humboldt Waste Management Authority (HWMA) now manages recycling processing services via Recology for all member jurisdictions, including Arcata, at a rate of $69.56 per ton for curbside collectibles for 2018/2019.

Fees for garbage and recycling are based on the size of the cart or bin serviced and the frequency of service. The rates cover pick up service for both recycling and garbage carts and bins, a per ton fee for garbage sent to the landfill, and a processing fee for recyclable materials that are recycled. Future fee increases will be tied to the Consumer Price Increase (CPI) and henceforth will automatically adjust on July 1.

The total additional cost is $193,725, to be spread across all accounts. Single-family customers generate 65 percent of the recycling tonnage, or 1,749 of 2,704 tons. When the cost is spread over the number of single-family carts serviced, the increase is $2.96 per month for each recycling cart a customer uses.

Multi-family and commercial accounts generate 35 percent of the recycling tonnage, or 955 tons. The cost to service this tonnage results in an increase of $6.65 monthly for each recycling cart or bin. According to the city, this option fairly distributes costs to where tonnage is generated.

Citizen Maggie Gainer, a waste reduction enthusiast, asked what was being done to keep material from reaching the waste stream in the first

SEASON'S GLEANINGS

WONDER AND LIGHT Arcata Main Street's Season of Wonder and Light brought brilliance to the Plaza Friday night, the lights out-gleamed only by the smiles on the faces. Left, Santa and Mrs. Claus arrived in an Old Town Carriage and proceeded to hear holiday wishes. Below, the Marching Lumberjacks. Above, the Arcata Fire District transported Santa to the McKinleyville Shopping Center Christmas Tree for the official lighting as children enjoyed crafts, a photo with Santa, balloon art work and horse drawn carriage rides. Humboldt extends cannabis tracking

Daniel Mintz
MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT — The state doesn't have a cannabis track and trace program in place but Humboldt County does, with 2.7 million product stamps ordered so far.

And with the state's system not expected to be operational until at least six months, a contract with a tracking and tracing firm has been extended until late spring.

Extension of the county's contract with SIPCA Security LLC was approved at the December 4 Board of Supervisors meeting.

Known as CalOrigin, the county's program began in the fall of 2017 and has included the tagging of over 960,000 plants and 175,000 pounds of processed cannabis. At this point, 583 local licensees have clearance to operate at 774 cultivation sites.

County agricultural Commissioner Jeff Dolf told supervisors that the six-month extension of the SICPA contract will allow tracking and tracing to continue as the state ramps up its own system.

The state now has a temporary licensing system. Dolf said a statewide track and trace program will take effect when a significant number of permanent, annually-renewed state licenses have been issued. "To date, there are only three that have been issued statewide," he continued.

He said if the county doesn't continue its program, there will be a "gap" in the track-

Arrest on attempted murder charge

ARCATA POLICE DEPARTMENT
ARCATA – On Monday, Dec. 3 at about 8:10 a.m., Arcata Police Department officers responded to the report of shots fired in the area of Foster Avenue and Heather Lane. While in route, officers were advised that there was one shooting victim on scene. Witnesses also said some of the involved parties were fleeing the scene in a pickup.
Officers located a truck matching the description provided traveling east-bound on Foster Avenue. A high-risk traffic stop was initiated and three male subjects were detained without incident.

Officers located the male shooting victim, a white male adult in his 20s, in an apartment in the 2100 block of Heather Lane. Fire and medical personnel were staged in the area and provided medical aid to the victim once the scene was secure. The victim’s injuries were not life threatening and he was transported to the hospital.
Officers learned a verbal altercation had occurred between two groups of residents. During the altercation one of the involved parties retrieved his rifle and began shooting at the other group striking one of them.

Search warrants were obtained and a rifle was located in the pickup officers stopped on their arrival. Matthew Allen Ramsey, 20, of Arcata was arrested on an attempted murder charge and transported to the Humboldt County Correctional Facility.
Arcata High School was put on lockdown due to the incidents proximity to the campus. The campus was re-opened once it was determined that there were no outstanding suspects.
The Arcata Police Department thank the Humboldt State University Police Department for their assistance during the initial incident as well as the Eureka Police Department for their assistance with evidence collection.
Anyone with information regarding this incident is asked to call (707) 822-2428.

Cannabis | ‘Proactive and effective’ tracking

county cannabis products.
A written county staff report states that “conscious of industry complaints about the program’s cost,” SIPCA has agreed to lower the program’s accounting fee by 30 percent, to $400.
During a public comment period, members of the cannabis industry supported the program and vouched for SIPCA’s customer service.
Nathan Whittington of the Ladybug Herbal Sanctuary cooperative came to the podium brandishing a thick “compliance binder.” He described the program as an initially challenging one that ultimately delivers benefits.
“It’s been daunting and it’s been hard – but we’re getting through it,” said Whittington, adding that the county’s inspections clarified what needed to be done.
That prepared him for a subsequent visit from a state inspector. “They were able to readily see that we were within our cultivation area and everything was tagged appropriately because we had a track and trace program in place,” he continued.

Other speakers emphasized the importance of local control and urged supervisors to support marketing and branding efforts. Terra Carver of the Humboldt Growers Alliance said the local program has strong potential to help “leverage our world-renowned brand by building a marketing effort around verified Humboldt County products.”
Supervisor Estelle Fennell, who chairs the California Cannabis Authority, said Humboldt’s regulation has been proactive and effective.
“We’re breaking new ground with every day,” she continued. “We started this a few years ago and we are ahead of the state.”
Fennell added, “A very important part of the whole legalization movement was to assure local control – we’re asserting that.”

The program’s revenues aren’t matching its costs. Dolf said each product stamp costs seven cents and the county’s share is five cents. With 2.7 million stamps purchased, the county’s revenue amounts to about $135,000.
But Dolf said his office’s costs related to the program in the 2017 to 2018 fiscal year were $270,000.
A million dollars is budgeted for the SIPCA contract extension and is expected to be paid for through user fees. A written county staff report states that fees collected so far amount to about $490,000.
The county is also pursuing cannabis marketing and community grant programs through its economic development division. County staff told supervisors that those proposals will be referred to the board in March.

❖ COLLEGE LIFE TODAY

How college cleared my path

Jamie Rubin
SPECIAL TO THE
MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT State – In the midst of exams and projects, I sometimes wonder why I chose college. Why would I intentionally put myself through stress, lack of sleep, and the pressure to succeed? I go through phases of regret and compare my life to those around me, instilling a real fear of the soon to come post-baccalaureate blues.

Will all of this time, money and hard work really pay off in the end? Then I realize, prior to college, my roadmap in life looked like a Jackson Pollock painting. It was a mess of scattered lines moving in unplanned directions.

As a kid, higher education wasn't always discussed in my family. It was my understanding that if I learned a skill or found something I was passionate about, my career path would seem much more clear. However, I didn't understand that college could be used as a tool to find those things I would be passionate about. I imagined college as a concrete prison that only accepted those who claimed their career path at the age of five. College couldn't be for indecisive people like me.

After years of odd jobs, technical school and experience as a veterinary technician, I realized I was staying stagnant in life. College was my answer to escape my everyday monotony. I struggled with the idea of going to college for years, but the uncertainty of my future was the most terrifying. When I decided to go to community college it was like walking into a busy intersection blindfolded. I had no idea what I was doing, but I knew it was the way I would find change.

Beginning my college experience at a community college was the most important decision I had made for my future. From business administration, to art history, to geology, it allowed me to experiment with several subjects and helped me narrow down my interests. More importantly, it taught me that receiving an education didn't need to feel forced. One of my professors once quoted

W.B. Yeats, "Education is not the filling of a pail, but the lighting of a fire." I had never heard that phrase before then, but it has stuck with me for years.

College wasn't that concrete prison I had imagined. For me, college was a space to recalibrate and find a clearer roadmap.

Jamie Rubin is an Environmental Science and Management student at Humboldt State University with an emphasis in Natural Resource Recreation and minor in Geospatial Analysis. Follow her college experience through social media out-

- 11:34 p.m. A man with questionable cost-benefit analytical skills in an unfortunate yellow-and-black plaid jacket pulled an incompetent heist of life-giving chips 'n' soda at a Uniontown supermarket, and headed down F Street where he soon became very arrested.

• Tuesday, November 27 7:22 a.m. A man and woman with a bike that had no front tire refused to leave a Heindon Road diner, meeting requests to leave with threats to poop in the parking lot and then smear the feces all over the restaurant's windows. However, they skedaddled before actually empoopening the place.

9:40 a.m. An E Street resident reported one man sleeping in his bed and another stealing his clothes.

9:43 a.m. Someone called from an unknown G Street location about a man who refused to leave, but the caller just kept telling the dispatcher to "hold on," wouldn't answer questions and then hung up, not answering when called back.

9:13 p.m. After shooting up drugs in the hospital parking lot, a man and woman went into the ER waiting room and demanded that the staff pay for their taxi ride.

11:53 p.m. A drunken television salesman tried aggressive selling tactics on customers at a Valley West gas station, who weren't necessarily there at that hour shopping for a 50-inch flatscreen TV of dubious provenance. He was arrested for public drunkenness.

9:17 p.m. When a man interrupted a burglary on M Street, the surprised thief quipped, "No one was supposed to be here."

10:31 p.m. After a he-sh argument outside the hospital ER, a woman intentionally cut herself. The man then took her housekeys, said he'd vandalize the place and left.

6:11 p.m. A woman was driving home on Alliance Road when a man dressed in a Mainway Toys Invisible Pedestrian™ outfit stepped out in front of her car. She hit the brakes before striking him, but he retaliated anyway, striking her car with a hula hoop. The driver asked that he be tracked down and admonished, describing the man as dressed in all black clothing, with brown hair and carrying a hula hoop.

6:27 p.m. A downtown driver described being nearly struck by another driver who was jabbering on her cell phone and then honked her horn and yelled at the other person. The distracted driver pulled in at a G Street business, followed by the near-victim, who wanted to take a picture of her license plate. It was then that she noticed that the woman had an open container of alcohol from which she was drinking.

8:28 p.m. An Austin Way resident set a meeting with a potential roommate, but the guy went ahead and dropped off all his belongings there before the deal was sealed. The resident was concerned that there were illegal items amongst his possessions.

• Friday, November 30 7:21 a.m. A woman threatened to burn her garbage out in front of a Valley West business.

4:54 p.m. An E Street woman threatened to "firebomb" someone's truck, but it turns out she says stupid shit like that all the time.

6:38 p.m. A long-haired man in a multicolored sweater was reported wandering in traffic at Foster Avenue and Alliance Road, and struck a passing car with a hula hoop. He then headed eastward toting a bag of groceries and his assault hoop.

7:33-7:34 p.m. A man in a beanie and striped shirt carrying a hula hoop was reported jumping in front of cars on Alliance Road, and starting arguments with drivers of passing vehicles. The hostile hoopman was arrested.

This overarching headline somehow ties together the disparate ideas in the letters

Scratch ‘n’ save

Charles Darwin said “he was the greatest scientific traveler who ever lived.”

Thomas Jefferson said “I consider him the most important scientist whom I have met!” These words were spoken about Alexander Von Humboldt.

Just scratch off William McKinley’s name from the pedestal and carve Humboldt’s name on it.

People would then know why in 1850 they named the county in his honor. Sure save a ton of money.

You, kind sir, aren’t the one who needs to apologize

Introspection in the time of heavy rain, dark days and bare trees:

When I was insensitive or out of line or acted stupidly, I am sorry. Please forgive me.

Packs of hope thanks

Throughout the week of November 26 through 30, students, families, and community members collaborated and put together at least 200 Packs of Hope for the victims of the Camp Fire, who will return to school on Monday, December 3. We were able to fill 200 backpacks with everything a student might need on the first day of school... including a $25 gift card in each one! The outpouring was astonishing, and we want to express our gratitude for everyone’s generosity: Coast Central Credit Union, Linda Sundburg Insurance, Northtown Books, Pacific Paper Supply, Schatzi’s Hidden Treasures, and Tin Can Mailman donated cash, books, school and office supplies. Countless individuals made generous financial contributions. Families, students, and staff from Jacoby Creek, McKinleyville Union School District, and Union Street Charter School donated money and supplies. In all, our community contributed over $3,500 in cash and gift cards alone. On Friday, students from McKinleyville Middle School and Union Street Charter School assembled the backpacks with supplies, personal notes of encouragement, and gift cards, and the Packs of Hope were delivered to relocation sites in Oroville on Saturday. Many other groups in the community are working to bring donations to the fire victims, and we feel so proud to be a part of this community who, as a whole, has shown so much caring and compassion. Needless to say, the generosity of this community will make the return to normalcy just a little easier for those who lost so much in this devastating and tragic event. Once again, we thank you all.

Very sincerely,
Maureen Taylor, the staff and students of McKinleyville Middle and Union Street (Arcata) Charter Schools place. She said Recology has vast expertise and resources to pursue waste reduction, and should be working with Zero Waste Humboldt for “real efforts to change ratepayer behavior and increase waste reduction habits.” She noted that there is a significant amount of garbage in the recycling stream, and vice versa.

“How can we incentivise less waste, whether it’s recyclable or it’s not recyclable?” Gainer asked. She said she supports the rate increase to help drive down waste, as long as it’s accompanied by further action.

Councilmember Susan Ornelas said she’d like to encourage manufacturers who create the future waste in the first place to start taking responsibility for reducing the amount of material that will eventually be tossed. “I don’t think it’s that far-fetched for us to be thinking about this stuff,” she said.

Councilmember Brett Watson agreed, stating that he didn’t see where pro-active efforts were being sufficiently pursued.

A staff report says the rate increase is needed for changes in the global recycling scheme far beyond Arcata’s direct control. States the report, “Markets for recyclable material have dramatically dropped in the past year due to many factors, including lack of domestic markets, international markets curtailing imports of material, and the need for cleaner recyclable materials when they are delivered to markets.”

Help prevent stormwater pollution

ARCATA – The City of Arcata is committed to improving local water quality, and our Environmental Services Department has some tips for community members on how to prevent stormwater pollution this rainy season.

Preventing stormwater pollution is an easy way community members can help keep Humboldt Bay, local creeks and other bodies of water clean for the public and wildlife.

Stormwater is rain that does not get absorbed into the ground, but flows into a stormwater drainage system. The City’s storm drainage system is separate from the wastewater sewer system, which means that rainwater and any other fluid or debris flowing into storm drains are not treated by our sewage treatment plant.

Items left in streets and gutters including leaves, cigarettes, trash, motor oil and other auto fluids from driveways, soapy runoff that occurs from washing cars, pet waste, garden pesticides and fertilizers, and muddy runoff from construction sites that wash into streets all enter the City’s storm drains and flow directly into Humboldt Bay, local rivers and creeks, which impacts local water quality.

Poor water quality affects everyone, including wildlife, so it is important that we all work together to prevent stormwater pollution. To keep local water clean, we must ensure that only rain goes down our storm drains.

Here are five easy stormwater pollution prevention measures that anyone can take to help keep our water clean:

1. Never wash anything into a storm drain.
2. Maintain your vehicle.

Park your car on a lawn or gravel driveway for washing and pour soapy washing water down a sink drain.

Inspect and maintain your vehicle regularly to prevent or stop leaks. Recycle used motor oil at a certified collection center.

3. Properly dispose of hazardous waste.
4. Be a smart gardener.
5. Pick up pet waste.

Take unwanted, toxic household cleaners, paint thinners, and any other hazardous waste to the Humboldt Waste Management Authority’s Household Hazardous Waste Facility for proper disposal.

Use pesticides, herbicides, and fertilizers sparingly. Never apply pesticides if rain is in the forecast. Whenever possible, use non-toxic alternatives.

Properly dispose of your pet’s waste in a garbage can.

For more information on stormwater pollution, visit cityofarcata.org, or call the Environmental Services Department at (707) 822-8184.

Arcata City Hall hosts showing of ‘Return of Refillables’ webcast

ARCATA – The City of Arcata will host a special webcast, presented by The Container Recycling Institute, titled Return of Refillables in the United States.

The City supports the efforts of a zero waste community, and will be researching the possibility of a cooperative bottle washing venture to serve some Redwood Coast beverage producers.

The City hopes to collaborate with local businesses and stakeholders to make this positive change for our environment, and this webinar will help to inform community members of ways others have approached this goal.

This webinar will focus on refillable containers and will discuss how glass beverage containers are collected, sterilized, refilled and re-sold.

Several guest speakers, including business owners, will describe their approach to using and collecting refillable beverage containers from the public and offer guidance to those who attend.

The webcast will be shown at 10 a.m. on Thursday, Dec. 13 in Council Chamber inside City Hall, located at 736 F Street in Arcata.

For more information, please contact our Community Development Department at (707) 822-5955.

Tour Arcata’s landmarks, trails and more online

MAD RIVER UNION
ARCATA – Arcata’s Environmental Services Department has launched Geographical Information Systems (GIS) Interactive Storyboard Maps. The new GIS Interactive Storyboard Maps feature information where visitors to the City’s website can find a parcel or take self-guided tours to explore some of Arcata’s world famous locations and event sites, tour Arcata’s trails or take a historical tour of some of Arcata’s historic landmarks dating from 1850 to 1970. The goal is to offer Arcata residents with more background information about their home. The focus was on highlighting notable places, events and historic landmarks within the City of Arcata. City staff spent the last few months collecting photographs and data to complete this project. Staffmembers collaborated with the Wiyot Tribe, Humboldt State University Library’s Humboldt Room and librarian Garrett Purchio to provide culturally significant information and images to share with the community. For more information, or to view the City of Arcata GIS Interactive Storyboard Maps, visit cityofarcata.org.

Hash lab found in McKinleyville

HUMBOLDT COUNTY SHERIFF’S OFFICE
MCKINLEYVILLE – On Saturday, Dec. 8 at about 1:30 p.m., Humboldt County Sheriff’s deputies were dispatched to a self-storage facility on the 1600 block of Sutter Road in McKinleyville for a duress alarm activation. Upon arrival, deputies found one storage unit with keys still in the lock but were unable to locate anyone associated with the unit at the facility. Deputies made entry into the unit to check for a subject in duress. Deputies did not locate anyone inside the unit, but did observe components associated with a butane hash oil (BHO) lab and smelled a strong odor of cannabis. The Humboldt County Sheriff’s Office Drug Enforcement Unit was called to the scene to investigate. While executing a search warrant on the unit, deputies located over 327 pounds of cannabis bud and over 26 pounds of butane hash oil product. This incident is still under investigation. No arrests have been made at this time.

Truffles are little balls of melt in your mouth deliciousness that seem to be mysteriously difficult to make, right? Wrong!

KIRSTEN'S KITCHEN
Kirsten Lindquist

These are dead easy, five ingredients (including salt!) and are totally acceptable for all your friends and loved ones with special diets (vegan, gluten free).

And did I happen to mention how delicious they are? Screaming delicious, you-can't-stop-eating-them-delicious, slap-your-mama-because-she-never-made-these-for-you delicious.

Yes, really. They are that good. Don't take my word for it, go make some. I'll wait right here, patiently being self-satisfied because I am that sure.

Truffles

From Minimalist Baker; makes 14-16

- 1 1/4 cup dark chocolate (I used semi-sweet chips)
- 4 tablespoons well combined coconut milk
- pinch or two of salt to taste
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- cocoa powder for dusting (or powdered sugar if you want a snow like effect)

In a double boiler, heat the coconut milk and when it is pretty warm, stir in the chocolate, stirring until it all melts. You want it all fully combined.

Remove from heat and stir in the vanilla and salt to taste (and more vanilla if you roll that way) and place the bowl in the freezer for at least three hours.

Remove from freezer and scoop out with a tablespoon and roll quickly into a ball like shape – if you try to be too precise in your ball shape, it will melt. Now is not the time for precision, go for quirky roundish shapes!

Roll the balls in cocoa powder and return to the freezer, covered. You can serve directly from the freezer since there is so much fat in the coconut milk that it doesn't freeze solid, just enough to keep its form. Serving with red wine is of course optional but an amazing pairing!

Hugs!

So much to be thankful for in beautiful Blue Lake

The Wha-Nika’s Student of the Month for December is third grader Ekela Pires-Moore. Ekela is kind, a positive role model, and has excellent attendance.

She works hard inside and outside of the classroom. She enjoys swimming and plans to participate in ballet soon. Her favorite school activities are: PE, writing, the After School Cooking Club and spending time with friends.

A couple of fun facts about Ekela are: her favorite animals are the Koals and Cor-gis. She loves to play outside whenever she can and especially likes riding her bike around Blue Lake with her mom and sister.

Ekela Pires-Moore

And all students of the month from the beginning of the school year until now will be recognized at the all school awards assembly that will take place on Friday, Dec. 21 at 8:45 a.m. at Blue Lake School.

Special thank you to Blue Lake Volunteer Fire Department

Many residents know that I write this column, and often request items to be placed in it, if possible. Sometimes I’m able to do so, if time allows, and this week, I received a very special request from Ann Mixer – which for those of you who know Ann know that when she asks you to do something, you joyously find a way to make sure you can!

Ann wanted to give a special thanks to the Blue Lake Volunteer Fire Department, and especially Fire Chief Ray Stonebarger. Recently Ann had a scare where the Fire Department was called to her house for medical aid.

She says they were there so fast, and Chief Ray stayed with her the whole time until the ambulance came. Thank you Blue Lake Volunteer Fire Department and Chief Ray for being such an integral part of our community, and for the compassionate way you treat every person you serve. We know that this is part of your job, but you all go above and beyond every day.

Mad River Grange meeting

On Wednesday, Dece. 12, the Mad River Grange will be holding its last meeting of the year. The entire community is invited to come out for a meal at 6 p.m. followed by the meeting at 7 p.m.

And if you are interested in helping out this amazing organization, the Grange is in need of a new roof! Send in a onetime special donation for the “Put a Lid on It” Roof Campaign to: P.O. Box 2, Blue Lake, CA 95525.

That’s all for this week. Have a wonderful time!

You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.

Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

Sweet Kit Kat, handsome Romeo seek forever homes

Well, this week it happened... In the middle of orienting new shelter volunteers and telling them how much I appreciate the photos and information our volunteers provide, especially when I am writing my column, I realized I hadn't written any column and I was already an entire day past the deadline!

What with the shelter's Open House last Saturday (a huge success!) and answering emails and texts about foster dogs and rescue dogs and arranging spay appointments for five dogs in the Bottoms and everything else, I just completely forgot. You are reading this today thanks to the kindness and understanding of the Mad River Union editor.

The shelter's Open House was a fun time and raised much needed capital for the Emergency Medical Fund, which assists dogs and cats at the shelter that need veterinary care beyond spay and neuter expenses.

Thanks to all who supported the event by attending, donating or volunteering. The staff also did a wonderful job of making the place warm and welcoming. My smooth booth girls did a great job and had so much fun offering kisses and hand (paw) shakes to arriving visitors! Now we cross our fingers and hope some of those visitors come back and adopt our cats and dogs this week.

One of the available dogs, Kit Kat, was a recipient of the Emergency Medical Fund (EMF). She and her two dog friends had been living outside at the South Jetty for a while when they were picked up by Animal Control.

Once safely at the shelter, staff noticed that Kit Kat wasn't feeling so good. Poor thing had pneumonia and had to go through about a month long course of treatment. A family had met her and wanted to adopt, but they grew impatient with the process and decided on another dog, as Kit Kat needed to recover before being spayed, a legal requirement for adoption.

So now our pretty little Kelpie mix is waiting for a new family to meet her and call her their own. Kit Kat has been gentle with children that she has met. She had a great time visiting and playing with the new volunteers and is very social.

She knows some basic obedience and is a good candidate for easy training and is already pretty good on the leash. She would not be a great candidate for a home with cats, but could be a good friend to another dog if the chemistry is right. She loves the puppies that come through the shelter! Kit Kat is about two and a half years old and is spayed, microchipped and current on vaccinations. She would love to meet your family!

Another available dog is Romeo. Fortunately, Romeo has had no need for the EMF. Romeo is just around a year old and sweet as can be. I have a soft spot for the black and white Lab/Border Collie/Pittie mixes as they all remind me of my Hank dog.

When I see them bouncing in their kennels, I imagine that is just how he was at their age. Outside of the kennel Romeo is a different dog. We walked him with an older male dog and a young puppy and his social manners were just perfect. He was respectful of the older dog and gently playful with the pup, who he outweighed by forty or fifty pounds. Romeo is an easy walker, knows sit, down, shake and more. He is very attentive and sits to be leashed up. This dog will make a great easy companion for someone. Come meet him today!

Both of these dogs are available at the Humboldt County Animal Shelter, located at 980 Lycoming Ave. in McKinleyville. More information is available at (707) 840-9132, peth-arbor.com, or redwoodpalsrescue@gmail.com.
